Suppliers can create component files the same as Builderz

e.g. Importing CSV files, requesting price files from other users' or entering manually.

Manage/Create Price Book

Suppliers name, then create a price file by selecting a category, selecting a component, adding margin etc. The create price file form would look like this:

Component	Category	UOM	Cost Price	Margin %	Margin $	Sale Price $
Drop down box with search function to select a component from the Supplierz Component List. Search shows Component name, supplier, $amount	If a category was added when creating the component this will autofill with the category. The user can change the category through a drop down box. If no category was added when the component was created, then the Supplierz will need to choose a category for the drop down box.	Unit of measure autofilled from component details. Editable field	Currency field, autofilled from component information. Editable and with pop-up price update feature the same as for Builderz.	Supplierz user can add a % margin to the cost price.	Currency field. Supplierz user can also add a $ margin to the cost price.	Currency field. This is the sum of Cost Price + Margin % + Margin $

This will have same features as for Builderz such as "Add Component", Add new Item, update price, delete line.

Note that information such as checklists, documentation etc, created when the component is created will also be attached to the components in the price book.

Price Book requests and allocate Price books remain the same as current process.

Supplierz has the option to make the price book Public or keep the price Book Private.

A private Price Book is one that is shared to a Builderz user.

A public price book is available to all "Store" Users and "Builderz" users (see online store)

When a price book is shared from a Supplierz to a Builderz, the Builder only sees the "Sale Price, not the Supplierz Cost Price % margin or $ margin.

Refer to Online Store for what store Users see.

Price Book Requests & Allocate Price Books: No change at present.

Templates: No change, except that the Supplierz can source their components from their component file OR from a Price Book. The difference is what price is used for the template component price.

Supplierz can choose to have their templates as public or unlisted. If it is Public it is viewable (and can be requested by) all Builderz users. If it is unlisted, it is not viewable by Builderz but the Supplierz user can make still share it with Builderz Users.

Supplierz can create a template by adding line by line, importing a template or csv file.
